The distance between the bars determines the position for the push-up exercise. The distance prescribed is for adults of normal physical stature and can be adjusted inwards for younger participants.